Personally, I'm a big OneDrive user but I know a lot of people use Google Drive is a sensible choice. Recently, Google made Drive just a little bit better by finally adding selective sync to the desktop client. What this means is that you can choose to have some of your folders synced to your PC while leaving others completely in the cloud. Selecting your Drive folders To get started, click on the Google Drive icon in your system tray (that upward facing arrow on the far right of the taskbar). When the Drive pop-up panel appears click the menu icon (three vertical dots) in the upper-right corner and select Preferences. Google Drive's preferences window. A new window appears opened to the Sync only these folders. Google Drive's selective sync interface. Now a two-panel window appears listing all the folders in the root of your Google Drive cloud storage. If you want to deselect an entire folder just uncheck the box next to it. Another option is to stop syncing specific subfolders for each month, you could choose to only keep the latest month and stop syncing the others. So Documents > April would still be on your PC but folders like Documents > January, Documents > February, etc. wouldn't. To stop syncing subfolders, click on the parent folder in the left-hand pane. The subfolders will show up on the right. Now deselect the subfolders, click on the parent folder in the left-hand pane. confirm your selective sync choices. Once you confirm by clicking Continue Google Drive will automatically delete the nonsyncing folders from your PC. That will free up space on your local hard drive, while still leaving your folders in Google Drive's selective sync. A couple additional things to keep in mind: Selective sync only works for folders. You cannot selectively sync individual files. Also, if you delete files from your PC that are shared with others, Google Drive will no longer automatically sync. We're making this change to simplify how things work between the two services. You can read more about the changes in our blog post. When you upload or delete photos in Google Drive or Google.com, you can use a new feature called "Upload from Drive", which lets you manually choose photos and videos from Drive to copy into Photos. This feature may not be available for everyone until the end of July 2019. Once items are copied into Photos, items are not connected between the two products. If you copy Original quality items from Drive into Photos, items are not connected between the two products. and Android. Your existing photos and videos are still in Google Photos and Google Drive. Google Photos backup will continue to work as before. Not sure what settings, you didn't sync photos and videos from Google Drive to Google Photos. If you do see this, you used to sync photos and videos from Google Photos. Starting July 10, 2019, Drive and Photos will only apply to Photos. For example, if you upload a photo to Google Drive, it will not upload to Google Photos unless you upload it separately. Any files and folders you used to sync your Google Photos library to Google Drive. What you need to know Any photos and videos you make in Drive will remain. After these changes you make in Drive will only apply to Photos. For example, if you delete or edit a photo or folder in Google Drive, the change will not happen in Google Photos. On your computer, open Backup and Sync . Click More Preferences. Check if you use Backup & Sync to upload newly added photos and videos to Google Photos. If you use Backup and Sync . Click More Preferences. duplicate storage. If you remove a photo or video from your computer it won't be removed from google Photos. If you need to know? Items synced before July 10, 2019 will not take up extra storage space. After the change: If you use Backup & Sync to upload photos & videos to Drive and Photos, they will not take up duplicate storage space. If you delete one copy, the other will continue to take up storage space. If you manually upload a photo or video from Drive to photos, google.com, in Original Ouality, it will take up storage space in both places. Deleting photos in one service will not delete them in the other. It's quick and efficient. It runs unobtrusively in the background and has done an excellent job of uploading more than 300GB of photos to 2 different services. After having lost a lot of personal memories to a hard drive crash, it's nice to know that my photos are safe in 2 different places. Julia Alyea Farella LOVE this program! Works better than ANY other program out there that I have found to upload thousands of pictures WITH SUB-FOLDERS to SmugMug! Thank you so much for what you do! :) #happycustomer PausingMotion I pointed PicBackMan at a directory structure, and next time I looked - all the photos had uploaded! Pretty cool. I use SmugMug and while I really like it, the process of creating directories in is pretty laborious when you need to make 80+ at a time. This was a breeze. Thank you! Gavin Whitham PicBackMan was really easy to setup and has been running for 3 days now backing up all my locally saved photos to Flickr. My photos are really valuable to me so it's great to be able to have them easily backed up to a secure location. Jim Griffin It's AWESOME!! I have tens of thousands of pictures...and they are now successfully uploaded to SmugMug, where they are hesitating about using PicBackMan, hesitate no longer...try it...and you'll be glad you did!! Google has now officially uncoupled Google Photos from Google Drive, and the two Google storage services no longer automatically keep their photos in sync. That means photos you wake to them, no longer reliably show up in the other place. Google says it made the change because some people found the relationship confusing. But if you like having your photos synced, we've found a workaround that can help you keep Google Drive and Google Photos in lockstep. And to help, Google has a tool to help you keep the two apps in sync. Now playing: Watch this: Pixel 4 photo released by Google Sackup and Sync app for Windows or Mac will back up photos from your computer, camera or SD card to Google Drive and Photos, and the app will upload a copy to both Google services for you. Here's how you set it up. 1. If you haven't already, download Backup and Sync to your PC or Mac. 2. Follow the instructions to install it and sign in. 3. If it asks, grant the app permission to access your photos. 4. The app will install a folder on your computer called Google Drive, and you can drag photos and documents onto the folders on your computer with Drive, open Backup and Sync preferences and select the folders you'd like to sync, such as Documents or Pictures. You can set other folders to sync with your Google Drive to Google Drive to Google Drive to Google Drive to Photos using the new Google Photos Upload tool. The tool doesn't sync these duplicate files, however, so changes you make in one spot won't affect the copy kept in the other spot. And note: If you save your photos using the Original full-resolution setting, those duplicate files will count twice toward your Drive storage cap, instead of once, like they do now. And you'll need to use Google Photos on your Mac or PC. Tap Upload in the top right.1. In Google Photos, tap Upload in the top right corner. 2. To copy photos over from Drive, tap Google Drive in the menu. 3. Select the image or images you want to copy from Drive and then tap Upload at the bottom right of the window. You'll see a message saying your selection is being uploaded to Photos. How to sync your photos with Google Drive using the Google Photos You can also check that your Google Photos app is syncing with your Google Photos library on Google's servers. 1. In the Google Photos app, tap the hamburger menu and then check you've toggled it on and you're backing up to the correct account. 3. While you are here, in Device Folders, you can set other folders on your phone to sync with your Google Photos library. In the Google Photos app, you can sync images from other folders.
